

An effortless way to spread the cost of commuting

Workplace Transport provides an easy way for employers to offer season ticket loans to employees, which can reduce their transport costs, cut carbon footprint and make the daily commute more manageable.

How it works

Public transport costs have seen higher-than-inflation rises in recent years, making the cost of commuting to and from work unattractive to many workers. Workplace Transport helps you to provide season ticket loans to your employees, to help them manage these costs and to help you attract the talent you need.

Workplace Transport provides a fully-managed service including collating ticket orders, handling salary deduction agreements and dealing with scheme leavers as well as providing full support on remaining HMRC compliant.

Our free marketing support ensures high levels of awareness of this popular benefit, helping you to achieve your Corporate Social Responsibility aims and maintain a happy workforce.
